

enumerated stage into space. He finishes with a similar disappearance himself.

The only Chauncey Cleott will be the star at the Folly Theatre this week, giving for the first time there his play "A Romance of Athlone." This is revived with new scenery and costumes. Mr. Cleott will sing his popular ballad "My Wild Irish Rose." He has a good supporting company and an exciting duel with the villain in the last act.

The Park Theatre has a popular melodrama in "The Charity Nurse" this week. It tells the story of a girl attracted to New York from her country home, her employment as a charity nurse and her final vindication at home.

At the Star Theatre this week Edward F. Rusk's Ton Burlesquers will provide the entertainment, including two burlesques and a vaudeville show.

At the Majestic Theatre Irwin's New Maestros are home at this week. They give two lively burlesques and a vaudeville show, in which the special feature is provided by the five sisters Bellatzer, ginnas.

In Keeney's Theatre programme the stars are Louis Wesley and Mrs. Annie Yeaman, late of "The Mummy and the Maid," who will make their first appearance in vaudeville. Harry La Rose and his company will be seen in Will M. Crossy's sketch "The Sailor and the Horse." Other performers are the four Webs, "the human bridge builders"; J. T. Eckert and Emma Berg in "The Land of the Two Moons"; Harry Brown, a colored comedian; Vinie Headshaw and George Francolini and many more.

Concerts to-night at the Broadway, Orpheum, Amphion, Hyde & Behman's and Keeney's Theatre.

STORIES OF ANIMAL LIFE.

The Herd of Buffalo in Oklahoma.

From the Kansas City Journal.

Ranch 101 in the Ponca reservation has purchased from a halfbreed Indian at Missoula, Mont., a herd of twenty fullblood buffaloes and will maintain them for breeding purposes.

Probably the largest fullblood buffalo in the United States is now on the ranch. It was purchased from "Pawnee Bill," and when it was dead last summer weighed 2,200 pounds.

Migratory Gray Squirrels.

From the Lewiston Journal.

The editor of the "Banner News" wants to know why so few gray squirrels are to be found in the woods of New England.

A Waterville naturalist says he once reported to the Smithsonian Institution. The reply was that nearly all the gray squirrels are migratory. The flock may be in Maine one fall and in Tennessee the next.

Why they travel about is another question.

Not even the scientists of the Smithsonian Institution know the answer to that. They seem to be made that way.

Mouse on Woman's Hat in Church.

West Chester Correspondence, Philadelphia.

A little mouse might have created a panic in the First Baptist Church here yesterday, but this was prevented by the sensible action of those who were near the retiring young woman must directly involved. She was a pretty Normal School student, and the mouse had been carried to church services among the flowers on her hat.

In the midst of the sermon the little animal made its appearance on the hat, performed a number of antics and kept them up during the entire service.

At the close the young woman was invited to the room below, her hat was taken by a friend, and there was a mouse killing.

Bunny Takes Possession of Kennel.

From the Savannah News.

Mr. Brown is the owner of a high grade hunting dog, whose kennel, furnished with various sorts of carpet to make a warm bed, is in the house.

One night not long ago Mr. Brown heard the dog barking, but paid little attention to the matter. Next morning the dog was found asleep on the piazza doormat. He couldn't be induced to go near the kennel. Mr. Brown investigated.

He found in the kennel a plump mamma rabbit and two of the cutest little baby rabbits in the world. Mrs. Cottontail had chased Bruno out and appropriated his house.

Skunk and Rabbits in a Log.

From the Luther Register.

Charles Hendshaw and Lee Crossley, farmers near Luther, discovered three rabbits and a skunk in a six foot log, the hollow in which was but half the length.

They were attracted to the log by the dog. They pulled out one rabbit, then another, and were surprised to find a third one, but more surprised when they found the skunk, which was despatched with an axe. The skunk had killed the rabbit next to it.

Spoiled Cooch's Winter Nap.

From the Kennebec Journal.

The coon of the coon comes from Sylvester, and it cannot be doubted, the man has the coon's head to show first.

While John Poorer was working up some wood with a crosscut saw he was startled to find his saw suddenly become bloody. Upon further investigation Mr. Poorer found that he had sawed through the backbone of a big coon, which had crawled into the log to sleep the winter.

The coon was killed before he awoke up, and Mr. Poorer entertained the neighbors with a coon dinner.
